

CLIMATE & TIMES TO VISIT

Laos is a great place to visit at any time of the year as the weather doesn't vary much. Despite having two distinct weather seasons you can travel in Laos all-year-round and with no coastline to influence things, Laos's weather system is relatively straight-forward compared with much of Asia – it's always hot and humid;

consisting of a dry season (October to late April) and a wet season (May to late September). Within each season there are variations in temperature, with the dry months leading up to the wet season (March and April) and the early wet season (May and June) usually being the hottest of the year. The yearly average temperature is about 28 degrees Celsius, rising to a maximum of 38 degrees Celsius during April and May.
